Traumatic Brain Injury - Hormone Deficiency Syndrome: Dr. Gordon introduces the viewers to a few of his professional sports players; James Toney (Boxing), Brad Leggett (Football) and Patrick Harlow (Football) all of who have had repetitive head trauma in the course of their non-professional and professional sports life. The impact of mild, moderate and severe head trauma is now being associated with the loss of regulation of the main hormones that control psychological, physiological and physical functioning (GH, Testosterone, Estrogens, Progesterone, Thyroid and Cortisol). Dr. Dan Kelly, a neurosurgeon at the UCLA Medical Center, concurs with these findings and is presently involved in sports related research to identify the injury and extent of hormonal deficiencies arising from the trauma.

1. Mark Gordon , MD

Medical director, The Millennium Health Group, USA

After 14 years of Clinical Orthopedics and 20 years as a residency trained board certified Family Physician, Dr. Gordon integrates Anti-Aging Medical theories into a program of sports rehabilitation. Using nutrition, exercise and his knowledge of supplementation he has helped a number of injured patients return to their activities in a significantly reduced time. Pre-operative programs help surgical outcome and reduce the down time for both sports and non-sports related injuries. Many natural products are available to accomplish these goals. Dr. Gordon has been recognized as a leader in the area of Anti-Aging Medicine and holds Associate Clinical Professorships at USC and UCLA. He has recently been reappointed as Medical Director for CBS Studios, Medical Consultant to HBO and FX. In these positions he is available for consultation on areas of Preventive, Anti-Aging and Alternative Medicine. He writes articles on nutritional supplementation and hormonal replacement some of which have been published in Max Muscle and Planet Muscle. He has worked with a number of Nutraceutical companies developing unique products; Rexall Drugs, Thane International and Life TechResources. As a member of the State of California's board of Expert Medical Reviewers, he is recognized as the expert in Alternative and Complementary Medicine. His ultimate goal for his patients is to bring them back to a more youthful level of functioning; psychological physiological and physical.
